A Letter from the Executive Director

Every few years my husband and I vacation on a Smooth Jazz Cruise, a week of incredible music shared with about 2,000 fellow jazz enthusiasts in the Caribbean.

This year, in addition to enjoying the many spectacular performances, I was deliberate in attending some interviews and educational seminars with the performers.

One interview with a very young and impressively talented saxophonist struck a chord with me and reminded me of the Carroll Hospice team.

- The musician described his passion for his music and referred to his work as a calling. Those very words are used by our hospice team to describe their work and why they have chosen to specialize in hospice and palliative care.
- He spoke about his love of performing solo yet acknowledged that working in concert with other musicians brought out the best in him—much like the rhythm of Carroll Hospice’s interdisciplinary care teams.
- He openly stated that he was only as good as his backup band of talented professionals. Just as our clinicians are bolstered by the support of our secretaries, program assistants, referral coordinators, volunteers and many other staff.
- Finally, he spoke about being the new guy on the cruise and being welcomed by performers with decades of skills, talents and expertise. I witness this every day as our long-established team members welcome newer employees to Carroll Hospice and eagerly share their personal pearls of wisdom to position them for success.

Overall, his talk reminded me that providing exceptional end-of-life hospice care is both an art and a science, and it takes a team to do it well.

It’s so very important to do what you love and love what you do, and I am fortunate to be surrounded by those who share this same philosophy.

Regina Shannon Bodnar, R.N.
Executive Director, Carroll Hospice
During this unprecedented time, Carroll Hospice is taking the safety of its patients, families and staff seriously while continuing to provide the quality end-of-life care for which it is known.

As of mid-March, here are the latest developments in the ways we are providing care to limit the possible transmission and spread of COVID-19:

- First and foremost, we are continuing to use strict infection control practice—as we always do—to keep our patients, families and staff safe. This includes employing strict handwashing practices, using personal protective equipment if necessary, and cleaning our supplies and equipment stringently after each visit.
- Staff members who are not feeling well are directed to stay home.
- We are working closely with our nursing facilities to ensure that we are balancing their visitor guidelines with our commitment to providing good care. We are fully complying with their policies, such as making only essential visits and having our temperature taken before entering the building. We are restructuring our visits to minimize the number of facilities we are visiting in one day to lessen the risk of possible transmission from one facility to another.
- Much of the support social workers, chaplains, bereavement counselors and volunteers are providing is being done via telephone instead of in person.
- Volunteers are supporting patients and caregivers with weekly calls.

In addition to these protocols, our Dove House visitor policy has changed:

- All visitors must check in at an information desk.
- No children under age 18 are allowed, unless they are a child of a patient at Dove House. This includes all public areas.
- Only one adult visitor is allowed per patient in all areas.
- Visitors may be screened for flu-like symptoms (runny nose, fever and cough) and will not be allowed to visit if symptoms persist.
- Visitors with international travel may not visit for 14 days after arrival in the United States.

Lastly, per state and federal recommendations for social distancing, we have canceled all events and support groups through the end of April, including Taste of Carroll (see page 10). Cancellations for support groups may be extended as necessary.

We will continue to monitor and transform our policies as the situation develops. Thank you for your understanding. Please call 410-871-8000 or visit CarrollHospice.org for the latest updates.
As more families seek out hospice care, Carroll Hospice’s average number of patients has more than tripled in the past five years.

While the bulk of hospice care is done in the home setting, Dove House is available for patients whose symptoms cannot be managed at home.

“We’ve seen major growth,” says Ellen Finnerty Myers, vice president of corporate development at Carroll Hospital. “We used to have an average daily census of 4.5 patients at Dove House just five years ago, and now we’re at 8 patients.”

This tremendous growth has put into motion plans to expand and renovate Dove House to increase the number of beds from eight to 14 to ensure more patients can get the highest level of hospice care when needed.

At the time of Dove House’s original construction in 2006, the Carroll Hospice Board of Trustees had the foresight to plan for an eventual expansion of the facility. A shelled-out wing was built at that time in order to accommodate future growth, and it is this space that will be used to add new patient rooms.

An entire refresh of the patient floor will take place, including new furniture in patient rooms and common areas. Enhanced technological features, such as televisions with telecommunication capabilities, will be included in patient rooms to connect patients with family members not able to visit in person.

A reception desk near the front entrance will be built to assist families and to optimize workflow for staff. A new family lounge is also planned, with funds donated by the Kim Kelly Burden Foundation, to increase the space where loved ones can gather.

After the refresh of the patient area is complete, a renovation of the administrative floor on the first level will occur, with updates to the offices, board room and staff training space.

Mark Blacksten, Carroll Hospital Foundation board member and past chair of the Carroll Hospice Board of Trustees, is the fundraising chair for the $3.5 million project. “It’s going to allow the hospice team the opportunity to grow and greatly enhance the already amazing level of caring service that they provide to patients and families,” he says.

The expansion is being funded through philanthropic giving, including support from the Kahlert Foundation, the Harold Glen and Audrey G. Benson Trumpower Foundation, the Kim Kelly Burden Foundation and other generous donors.

In addition, Delegate Susan Krebs, chair of the Carroll Hospice board, and her District 5 colleagues—Senator Justin Ready, Delegate April Rose and Delegate Haven Shoemaker—petitioned Governor Larry Hogan and Budget Secretary David Brinkley for funds and secured $650,000 in 2019 toward the project from Capital Budget Chair Adrienne Jones.

“Both Governor Hogan and Secretary Brinkley are huge supporters of hospice,” says Delegate Krebs. “We’re very thankful that they included Carroll Hospice in the state budget this way.”

The construction project is slated to begin in 2020 and is expected to last about a year.
Managing Pain in Hospice Care

Pain management is an essential aspect of a hospice patient’s care. To effectively manage our patients’ pain, I involve the entire hospice care team—including the patient and his or her family.

Pain can come in many forms, such as nerve pain, metastatic bone pain, deep visceral pain or even emotional pain, complicated all the more when it’s a mixture of several types of pain.

Our first step in creating a care plan is to set clear goals and emphasize realistic expectations. First, we try to define the nature and cause of the patient’s pain. By doing so, we can more readily target its source by using a variety of treatment options.

Kim Kelly Burden Foundation To Match Donations up to $50,000

Exciting news! The Kim Kelly Burden Foundation recently announced that it will be matching all donations from new donors up to $50,000 in support of Carroll Hospice’s expansion project.

The Kim Kelly Burden Foundation was created by Mike Burden in honor of his late wife, who was cared for by Carroll Hospice in 2014.

“Shortly after Kim’s passing, I established The Kim Kelly Burden Foundation in her memory and in honor of the difference that the team from Carroll Hospice made in our lives,” Mike says. “I hope to inspire the community to partner with me in growing this vital service.”

Donations made by June 30, 2020 will be doubled through this matching grant.

A new program is helping hospice aides empower patient families who provide care for their loved ones at home.

While the hospice aides’ role is to help patients with personal care, there are times when hospice staff is not in the home to help, explains Gail Forsyth, Carroll Hospice’s quality, accreditation and education specialist. “We want family members to feel comfortable caring for their loved ones,” she says.

Created through a collaboration between Carroll Hospice and Carroll Community College, the program offers hospice aides hands-on demonstrations of basic daily care, fall prevention and safety, and health monitoring, according to Beverly Spicknall, adjunct instructor for the college’s Certified Nursing Assistant Program.

“The information sessions elevate the aides’ confidence in their ability to demonstrate the tasks they do and the ‘why’ behind them,” says Spicknall.

In addition to demonstrating caregiving skills—such as how to give a bath, how to handle a catheter and how to use good body mechanics while providing care—the sessions offer time for discussion of what information is important for aides to share with the families they support.

The aides are also encouraged to ask family members to watch them as they provide care as another way of offering knowledge and comfort, says Spicknall.

“The partnership between the college’s Advantage C division and Carroll Hospice is strong and collaborative,” says Janet Ladd, P.C.C., S.P.H.R., senior director of corporate services and workforce development for Carroll Community College. “We individually strive to inform and serve our community to the best of our ability, but when we work together, it broadens the number of people who benefit.”

Regina Bodnar, executive director of Carroll Hospice, agrees. “Our aides have been incredibly enthusiastic and complimentary of the program and the positive impact it will have for families caring for their loved ones,” she says.
GIVING THE Best Life

[Image of a person looking through a photo album]
Laurette Kammerman had one goal while her mother was in Carroll Hospice’s care: to give her the best life in the time she had left.

“And that’s what I did,” she says.

It was a dark time for Laurette and her family. They’d lost her father, Harold Schuler, in June 2018. Her mother, Laverne Schuler, had been diagnosed with cervical cancer in 2017, and had put her own health needs aside to care for her husband. The couple had been weeks away from celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary when Harold died.

Laurette had been traveling to her parents’ home in Ocean Pines every other week to care for them while working full time. “If we needed something, [my parents] would help us,” says Laurette. “So when they got sick, I told my husband: ‘This is my turn.’”

After Harold’s death, Laverne moved into Laurette’s home in Marriottsville, and they enlisted the help of Carroll Hospice.

Mother and daughter especially connected with Dorothea James, Carroll Hospice’s lead chaplain. “My mother couldn’t wait until she came,” Laurette says. “Her eyes would light up, and Dorothea would sing to her.” Dorothea was even able to track down a favorite song of Laverne and Harold’s from church, Laurette remembers, to sing. “To the very day my mother died, Dorothea was there for me and my family,” says Laurette.

Laverne had been in good health before the cancer diagnosis. She walked three miles a day, worked out at Curves until she was 80 and mowed the lawn at age 85. While in hospice care, she wasn’t in pain, Laurette remembers, but had started to lose weight, despite her large appetite.

That changed suddenly in early 2019, when Laverne couldn’t talk or eat anymore. She was transported to Dove House. Before she left, Laverne told her daughter she loved her. She never spoke again.

She died five days after entering Dove House.

“She whole life, it was about everyone else but her,” Laurette remembers. “She was very strong willed, and she always wanted to do things for other people.”

Laverne enjoyed knitting and crocheting and loved to cook, especially Polish food. “Until the very end, she always had to be doing something,” says Laurette. “I would sit her down in the kitchen and she would be peeling potatoes or making vegetables. She had to feel needed.”

Laurette made sure her mother was pampered in her final months, especially since she essentially had been homebound while caring for Harold.

Previously, the only time Laverne had her nails professionally painted was for Laurette’s wedding.

That changed when she came to live with Laurette. “Her friend would come every Friday and take her out to lunch, and they would go shopping and get their nails done every three weeks,” Laurette says. She also made sure her mother continued to get her hair done every week.

Laverne loved being a grandmother, or “Baba,” to Laurette’s two children. She would watch them during summer vacations at her home in Ocean Pines, where many memories were made. Now adults, Laverne’s grandchildren made sure to come home for Thanksgiving and Christmas to visit and spend time with her.

Laverne also loved holiday decorations, and Laurette was happy to oblige. “I thought ‘if she wants to have decorations up, I’m putting decorations up,’” Laurette remembers. Whether it was for Halloween, fall or Christmas, Laurette says she “decorated to the max” for her mother.

“My mom was my best friend,” she says. “I just hope that I gave her the best life that she could’ve had without my dad.”

Laurette is thankful for the help Carroll Hospice provided to her at such a difficult time.

“Carroll Hospice was my lifeline,” she says. “I will never forget what they did for me and my family.”
We are experiencing unprecedented times that are requiring us to adjust our life, work and social interactions.

Carroll Hospice is on the front lines, and all of our associates continue to offer comfort, care and compassion to the sick and dying. This includes our non-clinical staff and volunteers who are redesigning their work in order to move forward as an organization.

Reimagining Taste of Carroll, scheduled for April 27, is one of those things. Although we are not able to hold the event in 2020, we will celebrate Carroll Hospice with a clarity of our mission.

As always, we share uplifting stories of families celebrating their lives together in this issue of DASH. We will honor our Hospice Heroes and send thanks to all our sponsors, vendors and auction donors in the newspaper and on social media. Our mobile silent auction, date to be determined, will also be a way for everyone to give gratitude for Carroll Hospice and all the partners that are so necessary.

Care must go on. Families still need guidance and healing, and the staff need your support.

“We’d like to thank everyone for understanding the severity of the situation and for their continued passion for Carroll Hospice,” says Ellen Finnerty Myers, chief development officer and vice president of corporate development at Carroll Hospital & Carroll Hospice. “It is now that charitable gifts allow us to be innovative and impact us in ways we never expected, such as our current emergency preparedness efforts.”

A special thank you is extended to our generous Taste of Carroll sponsors and vendors, as well as our dedicated committee members, who put their all into advocating and supporting Carroll Hospice.

Today and always, we could not do it without you.

Visit TasteofCarroll.org to view the full list of the sponsors and vendors who had committed to our event. Please call 410-871-6204 or email CarrollFoundation@lifebridgehealth.org with questions.

Palliative Care:
An Extra Layer of Support

Palliative care is specialized care with a team approach. It focuses on addressing the pain, symptoms and stress of serious illness by offering an extra layer of support.

This free service can help families:

• Assist in establishing goals of care and priorities
• Provide emotional and spiritual support
• Assist with advance directives
• Collaborate with nurses and physicians to address the management of symptoms, such as pain, shortness of breath, nausea, fatigue and anxiety
• Educate to promote understanding of the underlying disease process
• Provide easy-to-understand explanations of difficult medical conditions

Ask your health care provider if palliative care could help you.
For more information, please call Carroll Hospital’s Care Connect line at 410-871-7000.
